Mud Season

Yes, in the Lakes and Mountains of NH there is a fifth season! Locally known as Mud Season, for obvious reasons, it is celebrated by the wearing of boots, discussion of frost heaves and pot-holes, and dreams of sunny days.

Mud Season is grudgingly tolerated as it heralds the end of winter and beginning of spring. How about trying some Yurt Yoga at Gunstock to relieve the tension from all those bumps in the road!

Birds Return Home

Migratory birds begin their long trek back to our neck of the woods in spring. Robins, scarlet tanagers, grey catbirds, heron and osprey are the first to return. Grab some binoculars, brave the mud and welcome back our feathered friends. The NH Audubon Society offers a Beginners Birding Identification Workshop in April.

ICE OUT!! ???

A time honored tradition and the surest sign of spring is the annual official ice out declaration. It applies to all NH lakes but a true indication that spring has arrived occurs when ice out is declared on NH's largest lake, Lake Winnepesaukee. Make a guess on ice out at: Facebook.com/nhfineproperties First entry closest to actual date wins a prize. Enter by 3/15.
